Yaum: Good evening to you, my friends, I am Yaum.

It gives me great pleasure to once more come among my friends. I am sure that there are many, many questions in the minds of each of you. I shall attempt to answer all of these questions, but perhaps in our discussion this evening, some of them will become more clear in your mind.

The evolution of man relative to time, perhaps, is not too easily conceived by some of you. The evolution of man is often spoken of by your peoples, and I am inclined to think that, perhaps, too often this is thought of by you in terms of one civilization. But, my friends, this is not necessarily so for in the evolution of Earth man, for instance, he has risen through more than one civilization to a point where he could have blossomed forth into a beautiful race of man. But, due to unwise thinking or choosing he has brought about a condition that has caused him to lose, temporarily, that which he has gained for he did not take the right path. He chose a path of science without spiritual understanding. His interest, let us say, in the scientific was greater than his interest in the soul, or the spiritual part of man. And, as he moved forward in his advancement, gradually the scientific part moved farther and farther ahead of his spiritual part, and he came into possession of energies, powers, scientific knowledge which he could not cope with, due to lack of spiritual growth.

In the case of the civilization prior to this one, man moved in much closer balance than he has in this present civilization. He reached a point where a great majority of the civilization had a very good spiritual understanding, along with scientific understanding, and his science reached a much greater evolvement than that which exists upon your planet today. But there was a point there, that was reached when certain elements of the civilization began to desire power over mankind. In other words, he began to doubt some of the truths he had learned in relation to universal law, and he allowed to grow within him, the desire for power, power over his fellow man. And, as this power began to increase, the desire began to increase more and more for himself. Thus, as man became weaker and weaker spiritually, his power began to destroy him and eventually, great chaos was brought about, and the destruction of a great race of people came about. And again they found themselves at the bottom of the ladder. They were the Atlanteans and Lemurians. Both races existed on this planet simultaneously.

So, man again is climbing the ladder of evolution. But, this does not say that all men of this civilization are again climbing this ladder of evolution. For those of that time who remained steadfast in their pursuit of truth and understanding, and stayed steadfastly to the laws of universal love and understanding, have moved on in their evolution. But this was a great minority. And so shall that occur again. But man himself can only make this choice.

Man has always the right to choose his path. It would be well, be very well for all of you to review the prophecies that are written in your Bible histories, and to attempt to interpret these into your present day times. Read all of the prophecies given there, read them well and interpret them into your present day language. Realize that these prophecies were given by the prophets of old and they put them into words as best as they could, at that time. But, I am sure, with a little thought, a little meditation, you can interpret the meanings to apply to present day conditions. But remember too, that all prophecies are conditional. Read both the Old Testament prophecies and the New Testament ones. Read them both. For the prophecies of the old gave men true prophecies, as did the later ones. But try to interpret them in present day terms that will be understandable to you.

It is also said that no man shall know the hour or the day, and this, my friends, is true. For it is not given to man, what we know as man, to know these things. No man that liveth in the physical, or upon this planet, is given to know the hour, and I know, in my own heart, that the day and the hour and the event, depend upon the action of man involved.

My friends, all of you face great decisions. Many of you have come a great way in your understanding in a very short time. I know that there are many things that often puzzle you. Often, there seem to be great decisions to be made. It would seem it would be a great help if others were to help you to make decisions, and perhaps you get a great deal more help in making some of these decisions than you realize. Yet, if man tries to be aware of his innermost feeling, he will find that great help can be had in these things.

I know that many of you, my friends, have felt a great closeness, a drawing together with others. Yet there seems to be no real reason for this. And oftentimes you try, you attempt to break or pull apart, yet, you are drawn, again and again. Does this tell you anything, my friends? It tells me a great deal. Some of you have much to do together and you will find, as you follow these impulses, these magnetic forces, that things begin to fall into place. And remember this, my friends, that man does not exist alone, but man is dependent upon man. This is something that your civilization seems to have forgotten, to a degree. I am sure, that in the future, you are going to find great need for each other. You are going to find great strength and great aid coming from each other.

I know that to some it has become very discouraging at times, very much so. And the feeling grows within one, that he can give no more. Yet that in peering within his heart, he again finds strength to go on. He finds there a spark of hope which again raises his courage and strength and he goes on. Yet again he awakens, and again he finds this spark. But, my friends, man will always be so, until he finds his true oneness with mankind.

My friends, you have a wonderful road before you. The path that stretches before you affords great opportunities for each one to show his courage and his sincerity to be one in the Brotherhood of Mankind. I say to you, my friends, go forward with the light ever before you, taking advantage of every opportunity that presents itself for you to become a more pure child of creation. Each of you is endowed with certain abilities that your creator placed within you. Use these to the best of your ability for all mankind, and, as you do this, you will find greater and greater capabilities developing within your consciousness step by step as you move down the path of truth.

It has been my very great pleasure to again be with you. If I have been of the slightest service to you, I am grateful. I wish to extend to each of you my very, very deepest love and blessings and I hold for each of you the highest vision for you in your development and in your search.

Goodnight to you all, my friends. It has been very nice to be with you. ❀
