Nathaniel: Each of you are—because He is.

Greetings to you, my beloved children, I am Nathaniel. I trust that each of you in your silence this night has found greater peace, greater joy and greater understanding. For my beloved, this is the purpose of the silence. There are many stages of this silence. The depth that you will reach will depend upon your sincerity, your discipline, and the way you conduct yourself, the purposes behind your motives and the regularity in going into the silence.

Man may read the books of wisdom, he may listen to the wise and learned and so may gain much knowledge, much understanding. But he will never be quite sure of what he has learned until he either receives confirmation from within or hears that which is similar from within. Only the Spirit will teach man truth so that he will know that he is gaining truth, so that he will know that he knows and know it to be true.

The great Wise Ones, the great Scholars have not learned their knowledge their wisdom and their understanding from without, but have learned it from within. It is sad that your civilization both past and present, has placed so much emphasis upon intellectual knowledge. There would be many more Great Ones and Wise Ones in your civilization had they been taught in their early years the art of going within, the art of penetrating that inner Self; the art of preparation for this journey inward—which is the greatest journey man will ever make. There he will find experiences that could not be had anywhere else. He will find knowledge that could not be found anywhere else.

He will find wisdom. He will find himself being endowed with wisdom and all of the knowledge that exists is worthless to man if he has not wisdom.

This in itself is very evident in your civilization and in past civilizations upon planet Earth. But man must prepare himself for this journey if he would go the whole way and gain the greater knowledge and wisdom. He must be pure of heart, pure of mind and pure of body, for only the pure can enter the innermost sanctuary where the book containing the great knowledge will be opened unto you.

So I say, my friends prepare yourselves if you would enter in. Pray that you might be touched by the Light, by His Light in degrees that would cause you to find the way. Pray that the Holy Breath will breathe upon you her wisdom, will breathe Her wisdom into your innermost being.

If you are sincere, if you truly want to reach those depths, you will reach them. For what man truly desires he can and will accomplish, he needs only to have the burning desire to know. And when this burning desire is set aflame in his heart he will leave no stone unturned to reach his goal. So, beloved ones, fan this flame that glows in your heart that it may become ever stronger, brighter, leading you on to His Light.

Go in Peace, beloved ones, and may His peace and love and wisdom walk with you. ♣
