

Caveat: These communications are informative teaching instructions for those who seek to increase their understanding of themselves and the magnitude of the future lying before us all. These lectures are not of a religious nature but rather deal with the science of human potential and evolution. This document is a direct transcription from the original recording. Although it has been checked for obvious errors, it has not been finally edited.

Copyright © 2012 Clyde Trepanier

January 10, 1970

Yaum: Greetings to you, my friends.

Once more it is my pleasure to come among you. I have been asked to speak to you this evening for a short time. I shall attempt to be brief. I understand that at your last gathering you were given some information as to what you could expect in this coming decade, although I understand it was quite limited and brief, which is perhaps wise.

Now, my friends, as you know, you are going to be faced with some difficult situations in the very near future. The time is rapidly running out for your age that you now are in, and I should like to for a few moments, try to impress upon you the importance of the preparation for these coming times. I know it has been said many times, and perhaps will be said many more times, but it is of great importance that you should cultivate the qualities that you have, so that you might be able to face these times with the least discomfort to your own person, and be able to help others to prepare themselves.

It is most important that you train and cultivate your thinking. Because this, you see, is a forerunner of any action. And whether or not the action takes place, if the thought or desire occurs in the mind, it is equal to the action. This is why, you see, it has been so much emphasized in the past that one must weed out the carnal desires. One must overcome self, so to speak, or the desires of your lower self, the carnal man. Most of the efforts of your people are spent in satisfying these desires, which will give them little satisfaction and little help in the days that are ahead. You see, the treasures that you lay up in the carnal are going to be of no value what so ever in these coming times. But the treasures which you have gathered spiritually will be of uppermost value to you.

I do not know if any of you have been aware, but on this night as you have gathered here in your silence, the very thing that has been emphasized to you many times did occur. Whereas it is said in your writings that where two or more are gathered of like purpose, of like mind, in the name of the Christ, there will he be in the midst of you. And tonight in your silence one of his angels stood in the room and gave his blessings to you. And he said to each of you "Love one another, my children; Love ye one another, even as I have loved you." This, my friends, has great meaning, great benefit. For when you are able to love one another, to love your fellow man regardless of his faults, regardless of what he may seem to be. Yet knowing that he or she is one of God's children as are you, you try to understand why he or she are as they are. And you do not make any judgment, for as ye judge another, so will ye be judged, and if you feel you must judge, and I do not see any reason why you must, but if you feel you must, judge lightly that you may be judged lightly.

As you move through your everyday toils and responsibilities, fill them. Do them to your fullest ability. It does not matter what your task may be, how great or how small, do it to the best of your ability. Serve your fellow man when and wherever you can, for as you serve him so do you serve your God. For he dwells within all men, and you cannot perform a service for your fellow man without serving your heavenly father. Make your life one that will be an example to those around you. I do not mean that you are to emphasize or attempt to show your spiritual powers or your doing of good. You just do them with no thought of it, recognition or return of any kind. In other words, as your great Master said, "Do not let your right hand know what your left hand is doing." You cannot bring truth to others or understanding unless you yourself can be an example, as your great Master Jesus Christ did in his ministry here. He showed the way, not by talking, but by doing. Of course, he talked and he taught, but he gave the example first.

And then he told his followers how they could accomplish the same as he had accomplished. He did not set himself up as being one greater than they. He merely pointed out to them that what he could do, they also could do by following in his footsteps. He was the way shower for your age. Few have followed in his footsteps, I regret to say. But I suppose this will always be true. It is usually only a minority, and a small one, who truly makes the great strides. The masses follow slowly. It takes them a long time to comprehend, for they are not willing to put forth the effort. For, my friends, in anything that you do you will find the path of least resistance will gain you little.

So, be determined. Be willing to work and to sacrifice through these efforts to reap the harvest, for the day will soon approach, when the chaff shall be separated from the wheat and only those who have made this effort will enter therein. Friends, it is all there to be had. You need only to follow the rules and the commandments that your great teachers of the past have laid down for you. And if you are willing to do this, it will bring you to a doorway that when you have entered in, will bring you such new and great experiences, that it would be impossible for you today to comprehend.

There is much more to learn. The path of truth is never ending. The ascension is long. It goes on and on, but it gets ever greater, ever brighter, ever more beautiful. The chemical, physical existence that you now find yourself in, is only the beginning. There are these things that you must do to be freed from it. And there will be more tasks beyond, but I would suggest, my dear friends, that rather than worrying about the tasks beyond, that you concentrate upon solving the ones that are before you now.

But love is the key word to the solving of these problems. For when you have found the meaning of true love, you shall never bring harm to another. You shall never hurt another for your love will be too deep for all things. This will not only cover mankind, but this shall extend to all creation. For all of God's creation, all of God's creatures, are one. They are all tied together by an etheric cord which makes them one, and that is why, or that is what is meant, "When you harm one of the least of these creeping things you shake the throne of Heaven." This, my friends, is true, for all life is in reality one. It comes from the same source. It is fed and nourished by the same energies, the same powers that nourish mankind. This is now being proven by your own scientists and shortly shall be verified publicly by your scientists. This even involves plant life. When you once understand, know and see creation as it really exists, you will marvel at its greatness. It is difficult to understand until you have had experiences that drives it home to you.

Now, my friends, I must leave you. It has been my privilege to spend this time with you, to be in your presence and vibration again. I hope that all of you benefitted by the blessings that was given to you here tonight. And as I leave I should like to give you my blessings.

May the love, the Peace and the understanding of the great Ones be invoked upon you now. May each of you have this Christ Light come forth brightly and grow to great brilliance in your hearts. And may you be able to spread this light that it may bring Peace, comfort, love and understanding to all those who cross your path.

Peace be with you beloved one.

Peace, Peace, go in Peace. ☸