My greetings to you, my friends.

It is my pleasure for the first time tonight to speak with you. I have been allotted only a few moments, so I shall take this opportunity to say a few words to my good son here upon my left. You have, my son, been granted the opportunity on this evening that you expressed desire for. I should like to say this to you. You have been somewhat troubled by the situation in which you now find yourself, but let me remind you, my son, that nothing happens to you or to anyone by chance alone.

Each experience that comes to any of you, comes as an opportunity for you to learn by, for your only teacher is experience, and I might add, because of some of the remarks that passed here before your meditation, that the only opportunity for you to prove anything to yourself and, therefore, have a knowing of the situation, you must pass through the experience, for no man knoweth anything lest he experience it. Through these experiences you are given the opportunity to grow. So, my son, take advantage of every experience that comes your way.

In your present situation, release all tension and know, not believe, but know.

And what is for you will be, and then, become aware, for awareness is important. Be aware of this inner voice that speaks to you, and I do not mean a voice that you will hear, but rather a knowing, or a feeling, that is unmistakable. But do not allow your ego or your intellect, to dissipate these impressions, I believe you call them. When they come to you, they come suddenly, and when you least expect them. And this is why, my son, it is so important to be aware of these and to follow through.

Many individuals have missed great opportunities because they were not aware of what was happening, and they did not heed this voice. Each of you have within you a power that can take you through any experience, to use your terms, with flying colors, and cause you to reap great benefits from these experiences.

I hope, my son, that my words have been of some encouragement to you. My love and my blessings to each of you. May you go in Peace. I go in Peace.

Questioner: Before you go, May I give my love to you also, and I pray that I can follow your guidance much more closely. We thank all of those who come to give us their, or shall we say, share their knowledge and their light. Please thank them for us, and thank you.

Answer: Bless you, my son, bless you. Bless each of you,

I go. ☸
