

Caveat: These communications are informative teaching instructions for those who seek to increase their understanding of themselves and the magnitude of the future lying before us all. These lectures are not of a religious nature but rather deal with the science of human potential and evolution. This document is a direct transcription from the original recording. Although it has been checked for obvious errors, it has not been finally edited.

Copyright © 2012 Clyde Trepanier

April 17, 1977

Joseph: Greetings to you, my beloved children, I am Joseph.

It is my privilege to come among you at this time. We feel that through your gathering here you have taken a step forward in your search for Truth, and also, we will attempt to bring about a greater aoneness among you. I am sure that each one of you, as a result of this, feels a little closer, feels a little greater awareness of the aoneness of which we speak.

Every step is important for one must learn to crawl before he walks, and he must learn to walk before he can run. You have a great opportunity here to do a service for your fellow man and there is nothing that is of more importance to one who would tread the Path than service to his fellow man.

Service is one of the things which will help you grow upon the Path, as much or more than anything else that you do. The greater the service you render, the greater your realization will be of your aoneness and your relationship to all Creation. Through selfless service one can strengthen one's weakness and also his virtues.

The Path of Probation is one of service and of overcoming, and the two go hand in hand. You will be observed closely and you will not be judged upon the mistakes that you make, for all will err. We are much more interested in how you handle your errors and how you use adversities to strengthen your character. If you use your wisdom in observing each error that you make and each trial or adversity that may befall you, you will find in this a strengthening experience, for no man learns without trial.

You will not be given more than you have the strength to handle, for we know your strength so this we would not allow. You, too, must realize your strength, for he who falters easily without putting all of his effort and strength into the overcoming of the situation, will not be able to tread the Path. So keep your courage high! Believe in yourself and know that you have the strength and the wisdom to handle whatever situation befalls you, and you will emerge a much stronger and wiser individual.

Those who are weak and lacking in courage cannot be trusted to handle the greater knowledge. All of you here at this time, if you have confidence, will be able to do this. We believe in you. Believe in yourself. You will have many opportunities to serve. Take advantage of these. When you do your labors, regardless of whether it is something of great importance or the smallest task, put your heart into it. Have full awareness of what you are doing. Do it joyfully and be happy for that opportunity.

He who cannot perform the menial tasks in this way is not worthy of the greater ones. This is important to remember as you go about your daily tasks. Each has his or her talents and strengths and each will be given the opportunity to use these, and when you have this opportunity, use it to the fullest. He who functions to his greatest capacity will be the greater servant. Compassion, understanding and love should be developed in all. These are characteristics that must grow while others must diminish, such as selfish desire, lust, greed and hate. All of these things exist in Man. The latter things are a part of his lower nature, while the aforesaid are a part of his higher nature. We must conquer the lower and develop the higher, and to do this, one must be continually aware and conscious of these attributes and treat them accordingly.

The animal nature of Man is not easy to conquer due to the fact that it has been nourished and fed through many lifetimes. It has been an important part of Man, important in his evolution, but there comes a time when this must be conquered. This is the time. These things of which we have spoken will keep you occupied for some time, so you should not become bored nor lack for something to do. Now, we have just a few more moments and if you so desire, I will attempt to answer a few questions.

Questioner: In one of our recent communications, we were told that at sometime in the future there might be a change in the focal point of Center R. We discussed this among ourselves, trying to determine the meaning of that statement. Could you enlighten us on this?

Joseph: As time moves on things change. Everything is in a constant state of change and this will also be true in the case of your group. It will not remain static. What the group does and how it holds together will depend on what happens in the group. I sense that you are wondering about the communication and whether it will be able to continue for a long period of time. This we cannot say, nor can we say whether another will develop and be used. This will depend upon the circumstances that develop. You know that the instrument and his mate are moving along in years of your time and this, of course, brings some concern to you as to what should be done if they move on.

This is a bridge that will have to be crossed when the time comes and will depend upon the situation that exists at that time, what the group has developed into, how it has carried out its work, and what the needs of the group are. If communication is necessary, I assure you that we can find a way. That is about as far as I can go at this time.

Questioner: I have been feeling very concerned about protecting the material in the tapes and the yearbooks from misuse once it is made available to the public. Should I be concerned about this?

Joseph: Nothing should be kept just to keep it unless it is something of great importance that in the hands of the wrong people might bring danger to others. The information and teachings are given to be shared where they will do good. Those who do not have the eyes to see or the ears to hear will not receive any benefit, but those who do should have the opportunity to learn. However, wisdom should be used in this area, especially if you are sharing information on an individual scale. One should develop an intuitiveness that will give him the insight to share in the right way. Too much knowledge of the wrong kind can do as much harm or more, than it does good. So it is well to determine the level of the person with whom you are dealing, and to deal with that case in a manner that will raise them up.

As I was saying, the material should be shared, but when you are working with someone on an individual scale, then you are responsible for how you lead this one. You know what can be shared and there is not much in your material that cannot be shared, perhaps nothing but some personal things that are given occasionally.

Questioner: I have been considering a move in the future that would take me a long way from my present home. I am very concerned about making the right decision in this matter. Could you comment on this?

Joseph: I would suggest that for the time being you do not be too concerned about this. You have some time yet, before you need to make any drastic decisions. I am sure that as time passes and this comes nearer, you will find things falling into place and you will know what is the right thing for you to do. I would not carry a great concern at this time but rather put your efforts into what you are doing and become more and more accomplished at that each day. You will find this will make it easier for you.

May the peace, the love and the understanding of all the Great Ones be bestowed upon each of you now. As you go forth to your daily duties, may you have the strength and the wisdom to perform each of these to the fullest.

Go in peace, beloved ones. Go in peace. ✨