Teacher: Greetings to you my son. It is my very great pleasure to have this opportunity to speak to you in this manner. I wish to extend my thanks and my gratitude to the instrument and his mentor.

I am the one who has been watching over you since your birth in this incarnation. I have tried to guide and influence you along the right path. I have not always been successful in attaining all that I desired for you. But you have been quite responsive, and have followed your path fairly well up to this point. You have been guided to certain individuals at certain groups, which have brought you, step by step, to the point where you now stand.

There is still much to be learned, a long way to go. But if you remain sincere and diligent in your pursuit, you will gain your goals. Be ever aware of the pitfalls and the temptations of this carnal earth life. It is not always easy to resist the temptations that come, but one must learn to be strong, and to be discerning. Do not waste your life forces, but rather use them to give you strength and life. That will help you move faster on your way to truth.

The road to truth, to knowledge, to wisdom, and understanding, is not an easy road. It is a road of hard work and suffering. One must always prove their worthiness through tests that come their way, and they will come. Without these, you would never be strong. Let not the carnal ways overcome you. The possessions of the carnal are but fleeting things. They are not real and they do not last. But that which is of the spirit, endureth forever.

These are some of the things you must guard against. For it is very easy to become lost in the vibrations of the carnal. In satisfying the pleasures of the lower self. Man does not become great until he becomes Master of himself.

In other life times, you have been a collector of knowledge and information, and a disseminator of this information. Now there is a burning desire within you, to become a disseminator of truth, to gather truth and to teach truth. This is bringing you closer to your goal, and you will find it a much more intriguing field of pursuit, but a more difficult one, but a more rewarding one also.

You now stand at a point where you are gathering much of this information and truth and you are to some degree attempting to serve by helping to spread some of these truths, and this is good. And as you continue and as you study and as you grow, you will be able to do more and more of this.

I should like to commend you for your efforts, and I believe that you realize that you have entered upon the path of probation, just beginning this path. How you progress along this path will depend upon you. How sincere your efforts are, how you apply in your life, the principles which you learn and your service to your fellow man. The last being the greatest. For man will grow faster thru sincere service to his fellow man than any other way.

Now I am told that I have stayed my time and again I would like to extend my gratitude to this household and its members for accepting me and to the mentor.

Questioner: May I ask if it's right we give (name) the medallion. May we consider him a member of Center R?

Teacher: He is considered upon the path of probation, the same as the rest of you, and would be privileged to do this, I would think.

Questioner: Thank you very much, I love you dearly and I feel it an honor to hear from you.

Teacher: It is my privilege and my pleasure. And I extend to each of you here, my love my blessings and my peace. Our love for all of you is a love which you do not yet understand. But some day, when you have reached a certain point along the path of service, truth, wisdom and understanding, you will know this love as we know it.

Go in peace my beloved friends. ☸
