

Caveat: These communications are informative teaching instructions for those who seek to increase their understanding of themselves and the magnitude of the future lying before us all. These lectures are not of a religious nature but rather deal with the science of human potential and evolution. This document is a direct transcription from the original recording. Although it has been checked for obvious errors, it has not been finally edited.

Copyright © 2012 Clyde Trepanier

January 26, 1962

Teacher: Peace be with you, my friends.

First, I should like to commend you all for banning together in groups such as this, to attempt to expand your consciousness. Too few people upon planet Earth today are making any attempt to do this. You are told by your astronomers that you live in an ever expanding universe, and this be true, and, if this be true, then man must also be continually expanding his consciousness if he is to grow with the universe in which he lives. Man of Earth has not done well in this respect. His efforts are too often spent in the wrong direction. He attempts too often to do things in his way, and thus he finds himself in conflict with the great laws of the universe. If you are to discover the laws of the energies that nature has supplied to bring about the functions of the laws that cause the planets throughout the universe, the stars and all things to function as they were intended, then first you must observe the action of these energies, observe them closely.

In the latter part of your nineteenth century, a certain individual volunteered to incarnate upon your planet and bring to your people the knowledge of some of these energies. Now, this individual, during his incarnation upon this planet, was not aware altogether of his mission. Yet, there burned within him the great urge and the great knowing that he must do these things, and that within him lay the power to bring this into being. And, also, a great knowing lay within the consciousness of this individual that, in order to bring this into being, he must observe, he must observe the actions of nature. He must study very closely her actions and reactions. And so this he did. And, as he observed these actions and reactions with great intensity, he found surging up within him great revelations concerning these things.

As the realization of the importance of this study and observation of nature became more and more apparent to him, greater and greater revelations unfolded within his consciousness, until a point was reached that he was bringing to your scientific world knowledge, facts and demonstrations, so rapidly, that your scientists of the times became lost in even attempting to follow. But, even then, many of the great revelations that were given to your people at that time were thwarted by the powers that would put self gain ahead of the welfare of mankind. So, many of the revelations of this man were not even brought to light, for he realized, in his latter days upon this earth, that Earth man had not developed to the point to receive these things.

I tell you this, beloved friends, only to illustrate my point. If you would go forward in your growth, do not allow walls to become built in your consciousness, but keep the doors open, that you may expand. For, when walls are built, they are difficult to tear down. Nature does not work in this manner and neither will you be successful in this manner. Recognize the urges that rise up within you, for what they are. Become master of yourself, for only you can determine if this urge is for the good of your well being, or your fellow man. Those of you who are anxious to move forward in the advancement of your understanding, of your spiritual growth, who are anxious to move forward in behalf of bringing good to your fellow man, whether it be of a scientific nature or of a development to improve your standards, to lessen the labors of man, these matter not, for all things that benefit man are good. But, whatever the urge may be, attempt to make close observation of the law surrounding this urge and you will find, in making this close observation, that nature will reveal to you the answers. But you must be sincere and your motives must be high, if the results are to be good. With this, my friends, I shall depart.

Peace be with you. Peace. Peace. ☸