Special: Peace, Peace, Peace.

My beloved children, many times have I stood among you and peered deep into your innermost soul, but I do not see what you see when you look into a mirror, but rather I see a being of great beauty, of great depth, of strength. I see there a being ready to be awakened and blossom forth into the great being of love that you really are. And, beloved ones, when the day of the great unfoldment comes within you, you too will peer into the souls whom you observe and will also see this beauty of which I speak. For, beloved ones, all mankind has this beauty within him, when you are able to see past the unreality and truly see into reality.

As you move down the corridors of time, let your awareness grow. Observe the beauty that lies about you. Observe the handiwork's of your creator in his creations. Observe nature in the raw, in your plant life, your animal life and then peer into the heavens and truly see the great works. Observe closely, allow your consciousness to open wide and really take in the beauty that lies therein, and soon a realization will begin to dawn in your consciousness of the true greatness of creation. And then, the realization will begin to come to you of the true greatness of the creation of man. For man was given dominion over all of these great things.

Man was given this great dominion, and the realization will begin to unfold and you shall truly begin to realize just what man is. Not in an egotistical way that will inflate your ego, but in a humble and mature way, and you will begin to realize the responsibilities that have been placed upon mankind by being given this dominion and these powers. And a realization will come to you of how these great powers of man must be blended together to bring into being a complete brotherhood and understanding between man.

And there shall begin to grow within your consciousness a realization of your great oneness with all of these things, and gradually you shall begin to blend yourself into this great sea of creation, into this great mass of mankind, and you shall begin to move into it and become one with it. And then a true understanding of creation and its mysteries shall begin a process of unfoldment within your being. And then, beloved ones, you shall be truly on the path of truth and understanding.

I warn you, beloved ones this is not a short path, but is a long continuous path of unfoldment, for there is much to learn, much to understand. But as this understanding grows and grows, you shall find that the path becomes ever more beautiful, becomes more intriguing, step by step, and your desire to absorb more and more of these great truths shall grow ever stronger within you, accompanied by great peace, and a great feeling of love, such as has never been known to you. For the true concept of love does not really dawn in the heart of man until he has truly embarked upon this path. This, beloved ones, is beyond word of mouth to describe. It is much too beautiful to attempt to put into words, but rather is something for man to know, to experience. I say these things to you, because I know within each of you is this tiny spark that is helping you ever onward to seek more.

I know that this spark of desire to reach out is within each of you and in my humble way I attempt to fan this spark, to get it a little brighter, so that its influences will be more felt. And I know, as I peered into the innermost being of each of you, that this desire is much greater than you have recognized and soon it shall burst into a flame that will bring warmth into your heart and help you to move in the direction and upon the path that you desire.

My very, very deepest love and blessings I extend to each of you.

Peace, Peace, Peace. So be it. ❄
