Yaum: Good evening to you, my friends.

It is my pleasure to come among you again and I wish to extend special greetings to your guests here tonight. I'd like to explain that what I might say is only my understanding and I only attempt to share my understanding. I do not claim to know all things. If you can accept my understanding that is very well. If you cannot, it is still very well. Now what would you like to talk about?

Questioner: Will you comment on Eileen Caddy's action in leaving her children to go with Peter? This is difficult for some of us Earth people to understand.

Yaum: You make all of your judgments on manmade laws and customs, but God's ways are not always man's ways. In every case of testing, you will find different situations. Your great teacher Jesus, made it very clear that you must put the will of the Father above everything else family or whatever, it must be first.

Questioner: It's so easy for Earth people to leave their children stranded, mistakenly thinking that they are doing the Father's will.

Yaum: Many times this is a matter of self-desire rather than doing the will of the Father. But if you study this one case very carefully, you will see that consideration was given to the children. And there was a long period of contemplation before this decision was made. But everything turned out well as they were told it would, providing everyone followed their guidance. The children were taken care of and eventually they were all brought together again.

Despite having been told that things would turn out well, Mrs. Caddy still was torn by manmade laws and customs. It literally tore her apart. But sometimes it is necessary for people to go through tests severe as this to prove themselves capable of carrying out a mission such as she had. It takes complete dedication and when this is followed everything works out right in the end, although there may be many trials and tribulations in the meantime.

Questioner: Will you please clarify the relationship of the Great White Brotherhood to other Brotherhoods?

Yaum: There are many divisions of the one Brotherhood and there is really only one that begins way out here which would be far beyond your understanding and conception. But this comes down and branches out into various Orders of the Brotherhood, and different names are used for different Orders. They work in different areas depending upon their missions. The group that I am working in right now is an Order working here on Earth in the physical and our main mission at this time is to follow all of the world affairs, the political affairs and all of the national and international negotiations and goings-on of any kind ... So you see there are thousands of different Orders of the Brotherhood and they work on different levels.

The Great White Brotherhood is a division of the one great Brotherhood. The Silent Brotherhood is at the very top and comes down and branches out into the White Brotherhood. Mostly man has put names on many of these but in reality they are all one and have one purpose. And there are many who falsely use names of the Brotherhoods but this is not too difficult to discover if you are discerning in your scanning of information. If you use the proper guidelines you can quite easily detect the true and the false.

Questioner: Are people then drawn towards the Order that, best fits their talents?

Yaum: This is true. There are many ways to one point and many roads you can travel. Many are led over different roads, depending upon the individual, as what is a good path for one is not good for another. So people have to be approached from different directions and different levels, because the path of Truth is as we have said many times like climbing a ladder, we climb one rung at a time.

Questioner: Is there a healing Order?

Yaum: I don't know of a special healing Order that does nothing else but healing. But there are specialists in healing in the Brotherhood, but you will find these in many of the Orders.

The Order of St. Luke is one of your religious Orders, I believe, and is composed of people who specialize in one area of healing.

One does not belong to an Order until one has been initiated into it. The path to initiation is a rough path as some of you know. After initiation it becomes much rougher, as prior to initiation you have much protection which is removed after you've started on the path of initiation. You are on your own, so to speak, through the trials and tribulations of the initiation and initiation does not come about overnight. This takes quite some period of time.

Questioner: It seems that most of the people of Earth are having trials and tribulations similar to those who are trying to be on the Path.

Yaum: Most of these that you are speaking of are manmade because they are brought about by man's misdeeds and mis-thoughts, which is different than being on the path of discipleship. The path of discipleship, which is the preparation for initiation, is one of overcoming and also of tests and trials. But each one must decide to pursue this path as he will never be forced to do it or even told to do it. It must be something that you desire to do and it must be sought consciously. I am speaking of the path of preparation for discipleship where you will be prepared then by a teacher for initiation. The path is not a short path.

Questioner: Using Eileen Caddy's life as an analogy, if one has decided to take the path of discipleship and has tried to overcome and attain this, would the tests come in such a way that they are cause and effect tests? Such as Eileen having to leave her children: the great lessons of discernment and obedience she had to learn.

Yaum: This would not necessarily be a result of the law of cause and effect. This is something a little bit different. Many of these tests, perhaps all of them, were brought about in order for her to prove herself for the tasks that she was preparing for.

Questioner: So each one of us might not know what it is that we're really preparing for? But the tests will put us in the position, in order that we will not only know but we will gain the strength to do tasks ahead?

Yaum: That is true and each one will be different depending on the individual and what is needed to bring them to the point where they can serve to their fullest capacity. Now in some cases, some of these tests may have been gone through in another lifetime. A soul check would have to be made to give specifics on these matters.

Questioner: Do you mean that we may have decided in another lifetime to take this path and in this lifetime we are finishing the requirements?

Yaum: This is possible or you may have failed the last time. There are as many different situations as there are people. Everyone is in a different situation as no two people travel the path the same, and we must not judge what has happened to anyone else.

Questioner: Is the path of discipleship into the Brotherhood predestined or have we already chosen that path and are working toward it?

Yaum: This could be the case with some but others perhaps have never made the choice. But if one, in another time, has made some progress, he or she would continue to pursue it in this lifetime and continue to grow.

There are many things that must be accomplished to qualify for this discipleship which leads to the initiation. There is much overcoming to be done. We cannot say that any one person is at a certain point or is this or that, unless we know the background of this person, even back for one or two lifetimes. What one is going through now does not especially indicate what another must go through. Each one must prove themselves on each point. But it will be done in a little different way for each one, depending on that individual.

Questioner: The Space Brothers state quite often that one of their purposes is to protect those of us who have tasks to do. Would this kind of protection be removed from a person who is consciously on the path towards initiation?

I think perhaps you misunderstood me. What I said was that when you have reached the point of initiation and you have been initiated into the Brotherhood, then you are starting on a path where you are responsible entirely for yourself. You must know how to protect yourself from psychic attacks or whatever. You must prove from then on your own abilities, you see. You are no longer under the protection of others. But at that point you should be able to do this. But up until that time you are subject to protection in degrees, of course.

Questioner: Would you suggest giving the book "Gateway to Liberation" to others?

Yaum: The book is open territory, you can buy it in bookstores, anyone can read it. It is a good explanation of what is required from the Brotherhood. For anyone who is interested in attempting to follow this path, it would be a good book to read because it brings out the things that you must face.

Questioner: Many are interested in the teachings of the American Indian. What part will he play in our future?

Yaum: Yes, he is coming to the front now and gradually becoming recognized for his abilities and his truths. In reality the American Indian is going to be the leader, race wise, in the New Age because he understands nature and more of the Universal Laws. I'm not speaking of the Indians as a whole because there are Indians, perhaps more so today than in the olden times, that have been led astray by the white man, educated and taught his ways. They will not be the ones that will lead. But the Indian nations as a whole, perhaps have more highly developed spiritual people than any other race in the world. But they have been, what you would call, underground for hundreds of years, but they are going to be foremost in the New Age. It would behoove any of you to study some of the Indian cultures, legends and if you have ever the opportunity to sit at the feet, to study with one of these wise ones, do not miss that opportunity.

Questioner: That which you have said to us before about our economic situation has proved to be right. Will you please comment on the following: Many of the lesser developed countries have been given tremendously large loans from the U.S. and from foreign bankers, larger than ever before. There is a great possibility that a lot of these lesser developed countries will default on these loans if the oil cartel raises its prices too high in the near term future, six months to a year. There is a very real threat that this would cause massive bank problems all over the world, particularly the U.S. What do you foresee, at least in the upcoming short-term future?

Yaum: I'm sure that your oil prices will increase. There is going to be much conflict over it, but it is going to increase and as you suspect, it is going to cause a great deal of havoc in your financial field. What you call conniving and struggling for power—and this is what it is, a power struggle—is bound to lead eventually to a collapse of your monetary system. And according to the suspicions of your greatest bankers, it will not be too long, perhaps a year. Perhaps they may be able to struggle up to three to four or five years at the most.

They have several plans. One is to come out with a new type of money which will have a different evaluation. They would exchange this for any money you now have and you would get 1 for 3 perhaps. This is the present time judgment. However this could change one way or another, depending some on the situation at the time, you understand. Another system that is considered is to do away with currency altogether and operate on a computer system. I think you are all familiar with how this would work. Credits would go into a central area like a bank and when you buy your purchase would go through a computer and charged to your account if your account is large enough to satisfy it. If not you would not be able to purchase.

But your whole problem in your financial world today centers around energy. The energy of the whole world is controlled by one group of people. There are many names that come to the front and are used but these are only names. But the big struggle for power is energy. Even your coal, your uranium is being controlled now by the same groups, the same power people. So in my judgment you are going to see all energies increasing in price.

This is bound to affect, as you suspect, these other countries who have borrowed great sums of money.

They will not be able to pay and eventually this will bring about a collapse. Just how soon will depend on how they manipulate. This can vary from one to five years.

Questioner: How does gold fit in? Is that part of the energy struggle?

Yaum: Gold has more or less become unimportant because it is no longer a standard for your money and today gold and silver is more or less a stable metal, you might say. It has mostly an industrial value or a hoarding value. Certain types of metal will always have value because they are scarce or limited metals.

Questioner: What would be the standard in a currency or card situation?

Yaum: In a card situation it probably would be established on points. Currency perhaps would just be differently evaluated. They would come out with a new type of currency and put a different value on it. It is like your stocks. When they get worth so much they split them and they give you two for one, etc..

But a system that functions as your system has, can never survive. Your government has accumulated a debt that it can never pay and the more it goes in debt the less your money is worth.

In actuality there is nothing to back your money today. You are operating on the same as counterfeit money. You used to be able to collect gold and silver for your paper money, but now it is only a note and even your silver money is not silver anymore, it is worthless metal.

My friends, I have stayed too long. It has been my pleasure to spend this time with you. I hope I have not overstayed my welcome.

As I leave I should like to extend to each of you my most sincere blessings and my love. And I ask all the Great Ones to bestow their love and blessings upon each of you.

May each of you find peace as you go forth in your daily duties.

Go in peace, my friends, go in peace, peace. ☸
