These lectures are not of a religious nature but rather deal with the science of human potential and evolution. This document is a direct transcription from the original recording. Zalhem: Greetings to thee, my beloved children. I am Zalhem.

Now that you have stepped forward, you can expect to receive requests to share your information and teachings with others. Some of you, at least, will be called upon to do this. If I may, I should like to make a few suggestions that might be helpful in your future functions.

First of all, I would like to say that you should always maintain a nucleus group. This would be your power group. This is where the real work is carried on so far as projects and the functions that you will perform. This also will be a place where you come together to gather power, to recharge. This can become a great powerhouse if you wish to make it so. As with all things that are accomplished, it will require work and dedication.

This powerhouse should be closely guarded from those who would invade to exploit or to seek phenomena. Those who would enter the inner sanctum must be carefully chosen. There will be many who will try to invade or infiltrate, but you must be firm in your choosing. Many times you will be criticized for this, yet, if you do not do this, your powerhouse will eventually lose its power.

In going out to share with others, you should establish certain guidelines to follow so that you might keep balance and accomplish that which you seek to accomplish. There will be those who will want to establish study groups to seek Truth. In establishing these groups, it would be well to have in mind from the beginning, the background of each individual in his or her study of Truth, so that you might better be able to give them that which is suitable to their present level of growth.

You might find that it is necessary to separate people into different grades, for feeding Truth to individuals, for which they are not ready, can often do more harm than good. These are things of which you must learn to become aware. Eventually, you will be able to attune yourself to the individuals and will know how to feed them and what to feed them.

I would attempt to weed out the insincere. You will run into phenomena seekers, those who are just curious, and those who just want some place to go. These will soon be known to you, and usually they will fall away of their own accord if they discover that you are sincere and expect them to be sincere and to work. I would make it clear to people that the search for Truth is a difficult one and cannot be accomplished unless one is sincere and willing to work.

Make sure that they understand the fundamentals. Many think that they do and they do not. I would emphasize the necessity of being responsible, for responsibility is an important part. I would emphasize the fact that they must earn their way. Truth is not gotten without work. To spend an hour or two in a classroom once a week, or whatever, is not going to advance them spiritually unless they work at it. These things must be carried into your everyday life if you are going to benefit.

I would let them know that you expect them to be responsible, as far as the group is concerned, in the way of attendance, support and service to the group. I would teach them the law of giving and receiving and explain that you cannot receive without giving. This, I think, is one of the things in which your people fail. They want to receive but they do not want to give.

Each should give as they can give, in service, in monetary gifts, or whatever it might be. Many are in circumstances where they can give only slightly, if any, in a monetary way, but this constitutes giving nonetheless and puts the law in motion. If you seek for and expect to reap benefit without giving, you will not reap much benefit. I would teach these things to these people, for why teach them truths that will not benefit them?

Responsibility is a great part. Responsibility to your fellow man and to your self are all a part of the search and a part of the understanding. You can spend much time and effort and have it be completely wasted if you do not include the basic principles of the search for Truth. All of you here understand these principles. When you teach I would suggest that you teach these and you will find that in so doing, you will eliminate the insincere and the sincere will reap more benefit.

Dissenting vibrations and minds in a group can slow the progress of the whole, just as sending forth the Light has its effect upon raising the vibrations of the whole. It works both ways, you see. These are some of the things that we would like to suggest. I think that as you apply these things you will find that they are very practical. We, of the Brotherhood, always try to be practical.

Questioner: Could you suggest the number of people from our nucleus group that should go to meet with new people in forming new study groups?

Zalhem: This would depend upon the situation. I would think that perhaps in starting with a new group of people, it would be helpful to have more than one person from your nucleus group. Once the class is established and you have gotten into the classwork itself, that one could handle it as well as two or three.

Questioner: It seems very important that we have a clear understanding within the nucleus group of what we are going to teach, so that we are all teaching the same things when we go out to share.

Zalhem: This is what I meant by establishing guidelines. This should be set up by the nucleus group to determine what you are going to teach, how you are going to start, what you are going to require of your students, and so forth. I would ask each individual about their background and what they are seeking. Ask, "Why are you here?" "What do you wish to gain?" "What is your purpose?" Make it clear that you are sincere and that unless they are sincere, are seeking to know, and are willing to work at this that you are not going to waste your time.

You may find later that you have to establish different levels of classes for some of these depending upon their understanding. You have material and knowledge where you can start at various levels. It is imperative that you know the background of your students so that you can treat them accordingly. These are guidelines that you will have to establish and it should not be too difficult.

Now, my friends, as I leave you I extend to each of you my love, my peace and my blessings. May each of you in your service to your fellow man gain rapidly in your search.

Go in peace. Go in peace. ✿
