Teacher: Peace to thee, my friends:

I have asked permission, and am grateful for being so graciously granted this experience of speaking tonight. I would ask the indulgence of the group, for I came tonight primarily to speak in behalf of the departing ones. I came because I have special interest, and wish to inject encouragement and assurance. To these dear ones I would like to extend my compliments for their courage in standing forth and stepping forward in their or what they feel to be their rightful path.

I would say to you: go forth with a joyous heart, not the joy of a fool, but the joy of wisdom, going forth with a knowing heart, knowing that you are being guided into a new world of experience, and that you are going to take advantage in every way possible to grow to reach new heights in your universal love and understanding. Know that as it has been so far in your preparation for this change, that there will be at every turn, at every cross road, a guiding hand that will take you to the heights that you seek.

Give thanks in your heart that the opportunity has opened for you to serve in preparing for things that are to come, that are to bring about upon your planet new and great opportunities for those who seek the greater knowledge of the universe.

As you move into the new world of experiences, close the door behind you and let the past be gone and begin a completely new world of experience.

In your thinking, in your seeking, and in your service to mankind let this one great realization ripen in your mind, that you are a servant of mankind, that it is your purpose in your sojourn through life to give.

If Earth man would but realize the importance of his service, not with a thought of self-importance, but rather with the thought of being of service.

And as your desire doth grow, so will your understanding. And, as you know, with understanding comes love and joy and peace. As you enter your new world you shall find great opportunities to be close to nature. Watch her closely, and see how much understanding you shall gather by observing her. She shall teach you many lessons that will be of great value to you, if you will but observe her. Many truths lie hidden there.

So, my beloved children, as you go forth into your new world, we shall be watching you and helping you in every way possible, that you might gain ever more wisdom and understanding. New worlds shall open for all of you, if you will but take advantage of the opportunities that present themselves.

So, my beloved children go in Peace. And may the light of the infinite spirit of creation go before you and open the way.

I am most grateful. Go in peace. ☸
