Oxal: Greetings in the Light, my friends, I am Oxal.

It has been sometime since we have spoken with you and tonight I should like to speak to you for a few moments concerning the status quo of your civilization at this time.

As all of you are aware, I am sure, that you stand at a very critical point in time. Much is being expounded by many of your people, both in government and in your scientific groups, in regard to the situation that you find yourselves in at this time. And I refer to the problems of pollution, of noise, the problems of racism and whatnot that is plaguing your civilization today.

Many of your government leaders, as you know, are finding that they are being pushed to explain their actions, and as you have noted in recent time, some attempt is being made to expose your leaders. These attempts will increase as time goes on. Your leaders are going to find it harder and harder to hide their inequities.

But, my friends, the blame cannot be placed entirely upon your leadership. Each individual must accept his own responsibility, he must act to correct the situations that exist. He must act to solve the problems that he finds are facing him for unless each individual stands forth and does his or her part your problems will not be solved but shall grow continually worse. Your individual citizens speak of pollution but each goes on doing his bit of polluting, expecting someone else to solve the problem. These problems cannot be solved entirely by your leaders, by those in authority and power. But each individual must accept his responsibility and do everything in his power individually to correct each situation. It is like peace. You will not find peace until you find it within yourself and if enough people find peace within themselves, become at peace, you will find peace reigning among your people.

It is not too late for your civilization to alleviate much of the great problems, it is not too late to turn. Much suffering and much anguish could be avoided if enough of your people would turn to peace. It is never too late to improve. But I say to you, as one of your Great Ones has said many years before, "The Kingdom is at hand now as it was then and has always been. Prepare to meet your King." Prepare by righteous thought and righteous deed. That which is just and right must prevail, must become predominant. It must become completely predominant in the individual if the King is to enter into His Kingdom. Your soul is the Kingdom and the King is Christ and Christ is love and love is King. This is the way. But each individual on his way to this achievement must do his bit to solve the problems that face his fellow man, must be concerned and be a part of solving them. And your problems, O People of Earth, will continue to worsen unless a realization can be brought to your people that each must act and not wait for the other to act.

So, my Earth Brothers and Sisters, we ask you each to take stock of yourselves and see what you are doing to solve each one of these problems.

I leave you, my friends, by extending to you the love, the light, the understanding and the blessings of my people.

I am Oxal. ✿
