Oxal: Greetings in the light, my friends, I am Oxal.

Things are moving more rapidly than it may seem to most of you. There is a gathering together taking place all across the surface of your planet, an attempt to bring together those who are seeking the light. Attempts are being made to bring forth a realization in the minds of these people, that the time for talking is past. Now is the time for action, action that will bring about a lessening of the situation that exists and are developing upon your planet.

Many of your people, people who have been seeking truth and light, seem to be under the impression that as long as they direct their thoughts in positive veins and ignore situations that they will go away. But I tell you, people of Earth, this is not so and part of the results that you are finding upon your planet today have been allowed to come about because of these attitudes, plus the attitudes of those who do nothing but ignore them.

Your people who have been seeking have been taught ways and means of using their power, their power of mind to help to alleviate these things, but they have not done this, they have chosen to ignore. Things only happen as a result of a cause. Once the cause has been put in motion the results are bound to occur, but even the results, though they are bound to occur can be lessened, can be softened by those who would use the power of light against them.

A great battle is taking place today between the forces of Darkness and the forces of Light and it is very necessary for those who walk in the light, who believe in the light, who want to work in the light to use this light to the best of their ability against these dark forces.

It has been said by your ancients that faith without works is dead and this, my beloved friends, is true today and will be forever true simply being what you call religious, believing in a God, believing in positive thinking and going no farther will accomplish but little. Man is expected by his Creator to be a servant, to be a servant to his fellow man. I mean by this that he is expected to serve his fellow man in every way possible, both mentally and physically, to attempt to see opportunities to help another to do things and promote things which will be for the benefit of all and not for the benefit of few. We should share willingly, to give willingly with no thought self. It is easy to give when you know that the one to whom you give your service or your help, will give to you in return. But to give with the thought of gaining is not giving at all. When one gives of himself he must give because he wants to give and with no thought of self gain.

Greed has been one of things that has brought your civilization to the situation that it finds itself in today. Man must learn to serve.

As you look about you, you will see here and there one who serves in this manner and they are always happy, joyous people for they cannot give in this manner without becoming joyful, peaceful, happy people. When man gives himself in this manner the law will take care of him in more ways than you can imagine.

This is the message that needs to be brought to the seekers of light as they come together and they need to come together in a way that will cause them to become one. They should not bring forth their differences, but rather join together in the things that they can come together in, in a common bond. Your differences, my people, are not nearly as important as the things that you agree upon. It is much better to seek the things that you agree on than it is to seek the things that you disagree on.

But this attempt is being made today by those who are attempting to help your people. They are attempting to bring those together in a common cause, that they might work together, join together their forces of light. They can also learn together, learn from each other, that they might become stronger in the light.

We are watching from our vantage point. We are attempting to guide and influence individuals, to bring them together. For now is the time, the time is now that, the forces of light must begin to come together in great numbers and use that truth that they know, use the Light Force, develop their abilities to use this force, for the need is becoming greater day-by-day.

So, I say to all those that my word shall reach—pass the word! The Army of Light Force Workers is being rallied, is being called to the cause, is being prepared for the battle. A mighty army it shall be and before this army, the forces of darkness will fail. But the battle will not be easy. Nothing is gained without great effort.

So, my friends, build your strength for the morrow for it will be needed.

It will take great strength to stand in the fire.

May each of you reach great heights in the power of light, His light, that everlasting light. The light that never fails.

I leave you by extending to you the love, the light, and the understanding of my people.

I am Oxal. ✨
