Teacher: May the peace of the infinite creator be with you, beloved ones, and may this peace bring you into a consciousness of a oneness, a consciousness, that will bring unto you a knowing, an understanding of the real meaning of aoneness.

Realize, beloved friends, that all is mind. The vast universe consists of Mind. It is creation that was brought about by mind. "What is Man" cried one of your ancients, "that his creator, the creator of all of us, is ever mindful of him?" Man is this mind—each a minute part of this great sea of mind. When man comes into the realization of his aoneness with this universal power, he begins to see the importance of aoneness.

Visualize, if you will, my friends, each of you here tonight, blending your minds into an a oneness, into one great mind, working together, yet having individuality. Come, my friends, try to visualize, to feel the welding, the blending of consciousness. Visualize, if you will, a circle of light engulfing each of you and each of you in consciousness blending yourself into this circle, and as you do this, try to draw upon yourself a feeling of harmony, a feeling of association, a feeling of togetherness, for in this state we become as one in consciousness. I and the Father are one. I and you are one, for we are all a part of the one and same power that goes to make up the whole.

My friends, my brothers, my sisters, when you are able, to draw yourself into this feeling, you are drawing yourself into the higher consciousness, and your consciousness will begin to expand, and expand, and expand, and you shall begin to bring about, through your own consciousness, a higher state of consciousness for those about you, and, yes, to a degree, your race or your planet.

Earth man must expand his consciousness. This is occurring upon your planet slowly, very slowly—much too slowly. But, beloved ones, let each of us attempt to do this for ourselves that our consciousness may expand more rapidly for each, each one will expand according to his efforts or her efforts. Each will grow according to his own will, not to the will of your Creator. For you must will it, my friends, and that which thou dost will, shall manifest.

So be it, my friends, may peace and understanding become predominant in the hearts of each of you. ❧
