These lectures are not of a religious nature but rather deal with the science of human potential and evolution. This document is a direct transcription from the original recording. Anthon: Peace be with thee, beloved, I am Anthon.

Since you are familiar with the teachings and the quotations of the great teacher that you call Jesus, I shall use his, or rather, I shall quote from his teachings.

In your scriptures are written these words, "He who has eyes, let him see, and he who has ears, let him hear." How few in this civilization, since his time, have had the "Eyes to see, or the ears to hear." Often he spoke in the first person, and your religious leaders to this day, are still accepting this as such. For instance, "Come unto Me all ye who labor and are heavy laden and I will give you peace. Does this mean to you that he must be accepted by you as your personal Savior. That by believing what he has said, and by only doing this, will you come into the peace of which he spoke?

"I am the way and the light ... He that believeth on me will have everlasting life ... I am that I am." Is it not ridiculous that one man should accept all of this responsibility unto himself? How few of your people are able to conceive the idea of the "I am" of which he spoke, of the "Me" of which he spoke. The "I am" in him, the "Me" in him, and also the "I am" within you and the "Me" within you. If we were to take literally these things without proper interpretation, would there not be many contradictions in the statements of this great teacher, for he spoke of the father which was in heaven and also said, "The kingdom of heaven is within you." "All these things that I do, ye also can do and greater things." Then how can such ridiculous teachings be brought from these words? Yet we find this coming from the mouths of some, or most of your so called great religious teachers. Teachers who are leading people, teaching them, attempting to give them spiritual understanding.

I sought Thee madly through the Temples, and I found Thee not.

Anxiously I climbed to the mountain tops searching for Thee, and I found Thee not.

Through the valleys I trod, searching here and searching there, and I found Thee not.

Then upon the oceans I sailed for many moons, searching through the night and day

More desperate I became by each setting sun, for I found Thee not.

And then, as I sat quietly in the solitude of my humble abode, pondering deeply, searching deep within my inner soul.

There I found Thee. And with Thee I found the Peace that, through many lifetimes, I had sought.

Peace be with you, my friends, Peace. ✠
