Zalhem: Greetings to you, my beloved brothers and sisters. I am Zalhem.

Tonight it is my privilege to come among you in your new center. I will be brief, but I should like for a moment to touch upon the subject that should be close to everyone's heart at this season of the year.

The great inspired sacred books were written in the ancient times to bring to early Man a religion. Therefore, the teachings of these sacred books were the religion of early man. I speak of early man as being of the first civilization upon this planet. The basis of this teaching or religion was Love for the Father, and the Divine Love of the Heavenly Father for His son, Man.

These sacred teachings were direct and to the point. They could be understood by the most unlearned ones. Every phrase was definite. One could not mistake a single phrase of these teachings. They taught man to approach his heavenly Father, not in fear, but rather as a child would approach his earthly father who stood with open arms ready to receive him.

They were taught that Love is the power that permeates the universe, and that power is the Father God. This was definite and positive. Everyone understood that this was the power that caused the universe to function and that wrought the works of the Creative Ones.

If you were to ask me, after studying these teachings, "Where is the greatest temple on Earth?" I would answer, "In the heart of Man, where everyone can go to meditate on Love and find that Love in the temple where it should dwell." Can you name me a greater temple in all Creation?

Many of these teachings, as they were handed down through time, were changed by the priesthood, who became corrupt and sought power. They sought to change the teaching to confuse the people and bring fear into their hearts so that they might control them and use them for their own gains. However, the true teachings are still to be found in many of the sacred writings that have been preserved by the Great Ones.

The point that I have in mind is that the celebration, of which you are about to partake, still tells that story of Love. It is a simple story and that is really the only story that it tells. The Christ-child was born to planet Earth to again remind them of the greatness of this Love. This great Master came to bring the lesson of Love to planet Earth at the beginning of this Age and that was His message, "Love ye one another, even as I have loved you."

This seems to be very difficult for people of Earth to conceive, yet, if this were put into practice on a large scale it would change the course of your whole civilization. This is the simple message of Christmas. Oh that we could impart this idea to more people and cause them to understand it. I believe that when man truly understands the importance and the power of this great force, he will use it and cultivate it, but he does not understand. We pray that more and more people of Earth will realize what this force is and why it is so important to the functioning of the universe. This would truly bring about Peace on Earth and Good will.

I leave you by extending to you my Love, and my Peace to each of you and upon this new center. May all who gather here come into greater and greater understanding of the true Love that permeates the universe. May the Peace and Love of all the Great Ones be bestowed upon each of you this night.

Go in Peace. Go in Peace.

Clyde: During our group meditation Samuel, Zalhem and Joseph appeared, dressed in purple robes and wearing pendants. They positioned themselves each at a different point around the room forming a triangle and began a ceremony which included the formation of various symbols with their hands while they chanted. As this continued a stream of Light appeared that joined them together in this triangle, which then disappeared and a circle of intense Light formed that was tubular in appearance and encircled the room. This tube of Light appeared to be slowly rotating over the heads of those present. As the ceremony continued the Light changed to a rose color, then to a light green, then to many other hard to describe colors.

During the ceremony the individuals' teachers present also participated in the chanting.

When this part of the ceremony was over a star appeared in the center of the room, having a Light that consisted of an unusual blend of colors that are difficult to describe. These colors seemed to be ever-changing and moved about in such a way that it was hard to tell where one color ceased and the other began. This continued for quite some time during which the power seemed to build in intensity. Then Samuel and Joseph departed and Zalhém delivered his address to the group.

Clyde: Joseph appeared carrying a gold cross about one foot in size, and at the end of it was a circular symbol of some kind. This circle was filled with symbols or markings that I did not recognize. He stood for some length of time in front of each one holding the cross over their heads, with one hand and making symbols with the other hand. He seemed to be using the cross in conjunction with the symbols as they seemed to blend together.

I asked Joseph if he was going to speak to us and he said, "No, what I have done will do you more good than my speaking to you."

Questioner: Will you describe Joseph to us?

Clyde: He is a young looking person with medium brown hair, worn quite long with no beard. He is a very good-looking person, as all of these Teachers are. Their always smiling faces seem to glow and they have a sense of humor.

He was in rather unusual attire. He wore a fancy jacket of rose translucent material which seemed to have great depth to it. His trousers of the same material were blue. ♀
