Hatton: I greet you in the love and Light of the Infinite Creator. I am Hatton.

Beloved ones, great shall be the power and the wisdom of him who serves his brother in Love, in humility, and serves him wisely. Realize that you of yourself are nothing, that only through the recognition, through the knowing of the power of your Creator working through you, are you able to accomplish anything.

Without this power given you by your Creator, you would have nothing, you would be nothing. With full recognition of this power you can do all things. The universe is at your command. This is important, beloved friends, very important. For he who makes big claims for himself, through his power, shall surely lose that power. Did not your great Teacher, whenever he had performed what you call miracles—but we should prefer to speak of it as service—did not he always say, “Go forth and tell no man.” You see the importance of this, do you not, beloved friends?

Many of you through time—I should say all of you in time—shall develop these powers. Cherish them once you have them, and use them with the greatest of wisdom. For only in this manner will you be allowed to use them. By your fruits, you shall be known, and by your fruits shall you recognize and know if you are using your powers wisely.

You were told not so long ago that concepts would flow to you in ever increasing numbers. I believe you recognize this taking place. No one, beloved ones, can set your pattern or your course. That is up to you. Though you are a part of the whole, yet you are an individual, and you must set the path you will follow. Cultivate your contacts with your higher self, your higher consciousness, for through these contacts, shall you receive the knowing that will lead you into the right concepts and unto the right path, the path that is right for you. This may require a great deal of meditation for many of you.

Earth people, due to the environment in which they have lived, have become steeped in concepts. There are many upon planet Earth, many religious sects, that can be followed. Out of all of these, it would take all of these to come close to the universal Truth. For each has its part, but none have the whole. It is not well to cling too strongly to a concept of any nature, to let it become so strongly embedded in your consciousness that your mind becomes closed to anything outside. For by storing that which you do not understand at the moment somewhere tucked away in your higher consciousness, you may find the time arrives when it will be of great value to you.

Some of these little hints have been given to you many times, beloved ones, many times, and I know you have wondered at this, but some of you forget very easily and it becomes necessary in the course of time to remind you.

It has been an honor and a pleasure for me to speak with you again. I have a great Love for all of you here. We have spent many hours together. There is a greater closeness or oneness than you realize. My Love and my Blessings are always with you. May each of you find your path that will bring you quickly to the recognition of who and what you are.
