Teacher: Blest be ye, blest be ye each and everyone on this night. Peace be with you.

What seek ye here, beloved ones?

Questioner: Truth and understanding.

Teacher: Truth, ah yes, may the great truths be revealed unto you. May your seeking grow ever stronger. May you find that which you seek. The seeking is the having, and each shall be rewarded according to his or her efforts.

Understanding is a precious thing, my friends. It is more precious than jewels or gold. Earth man puts forth great effort in the seeking of worldly goods. If but a small percentage of the effort man spends in seeking things of this world were spent in seeking understanding and truth, how much greater would his wealth become. For what has a man if he has not peace in his heart? Man of Earth is beginning to realize more day-by-day, the need for peace and well being. There is a great yearning, surging up within him for this, yet he recognizes not just what it is his soul desires. He does not quite have the realization that it is peace, love and understanding that his soul or his higher consciousness, or term it as you will, is seeking.

We should like very much to bring to man of Earth the realization that his true desire, his true longings, are not coming from his earthly mind, but from a higher part of him that knows the value of these things and is attempting to lead him into the peace, the understanding, the truth, that is rightfully his or hers to have and to hold.

Lay aside the anxiousness for what you shall eat, or what you shall wear, and replace it with the desire to know thyself, to know the truth and to understand life as it really is. Bring yourself once and for all out of the darkness, the dream world, in which you now have your being. Rise up and claim your son-ship with your creator. Know these things, not by intellect, but by deep spiritual knowing. When this true knowing comes into being for you, then, beloved ones, you have begun to live. You have begun to know life as it should be. You no longer live in a state of dream, but you begin to unfold, as does the rose when it comes into bloom. You begin to experience life in a much greater and broader sense. You begin to see creation for what it is. You begin to have true love for your creator and for your fellow man. You begin to feel this glorious a oneness with all creation, and begin to have an understanding of your part within it.

Lest man has these things, I say unto you, he has nothing. He knows not life. So, rise up, beloved ones, rise up. Bring your head above the dream world and look back into it, realizing what it is and why it is, but knowing that it is no longer for you. Lay aside your burdens, all or your worries and cares, and take on a life of peace, well being and truth.

May the great peace, love and understanding that is yours, rise up within you now and spark the flame that will bring you into this new state or consciousness that is rightfully yours to have.

Peace be with you, my friends, Peace, Peace. ✿
